

DEMAND HEAD FOR SOCIALISM

Many of the Resolutions Before the American Federation Have Carl Marx's Stamp.

ONE OFFERS CURES FOR TRUSTS

Trades Unions Are Called on To Use Their Power and Their Ballots To Secure the Nationalization.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 19.—It is given on what may be considered semi-official authority that no strenuous effort will be made by the Socialist element to commit the Federation of Labor to Socialism, but it is none the less a fact that a number of resolutions of a pronouncedly Socialist character have been introduced and hard work will be done to secure their adoption.

Here are some of the resolutions that will be strongly advocated:

"That we hereby make it imperative upon all organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to have their members study the economic conditions and to do everything in their power for the enlightenment and intellectual advancement of the proletariat."

Nationalization of Trusts.

"That the twenty-fourth convention of the American Federation of Labor go on record as favoring the nationalization of the trusts for the benefit of all the people, and call upon all trades unions in the country to use their best efforts and especially the power of their ballots for that purpose."

"That the incoming executive council of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to use its best efforts to induce congress to pass a bill which will secure to every wage worker in the United States who has earned no more than $1,000 average wages per year a pension of not less than $12 per month at the age of 60 years, and thereafter for the rest of his or her natural life; provided, however, that such wage worker is a citizen of the United States and has lived in this country for at least twenty-five years continuously at the time when the application is made."

Condemns the Militia.
"That we declare our intention and hereby instruct all affiliated bodies to hold absolutely aloof from all connection with the militia until the military system in vogue in Switzerland is adopted in the United States."

These resolutions do not all come from the same source, but each of them has advocates and all will be fought for.
The actual work of Friday's session of the convention was practically confined to discussion of the Fall River, Mass., textile workers' trouble. It was finally voted to levy an assessment of 1 cent a week on each member for three weeks. The vote on this question was unanimous and brought a noisy demonstration of approval, many of the delegates getting up in their chairs and cheering and offering money and checks from their organization. Delegate Keefe of Chicago handed over a check for $1,500 on behalf of the longshoremen, dock and marine workers of his city.

Want Japs and Koreans Excluded.

One of the matters which has created great interest among the delegates is the exclusion of Mongolians from the United States. There seems to be an undercurrent of sentiment among all present that congress be memorialized to pass an act of a nature similar to the Chinese exclusion law, which shall apply to Japanese and Koreans. A number of such resolutions have been presented.

TAILORS AND CUTTERS ON A GIANT STRIKE TODAY

Six Thousand Tailors and Five Hundred Cutters Leave Work This Morning.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 19.—Six thousand and five hundred cutters and tailors walked out this morning in order to compel the manufacturing tailors to sign a renewal of the present agreement providing for a closed shop and the union scale. Several thousand and other employees of tailoring concerns will be affected. The employers' association is backing the manufacturers and a bitter struggle is predicted. The conference on both sides of the furniture wagon drivers' strike is to be held today in order to effect a settlement if possible.

SOVEREIGN DYING OUT AT WALLACE

ITALY RESENTS A PLAN OF UNION

Announces It Will Oppose Greece Absorbing the Island of Crete.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

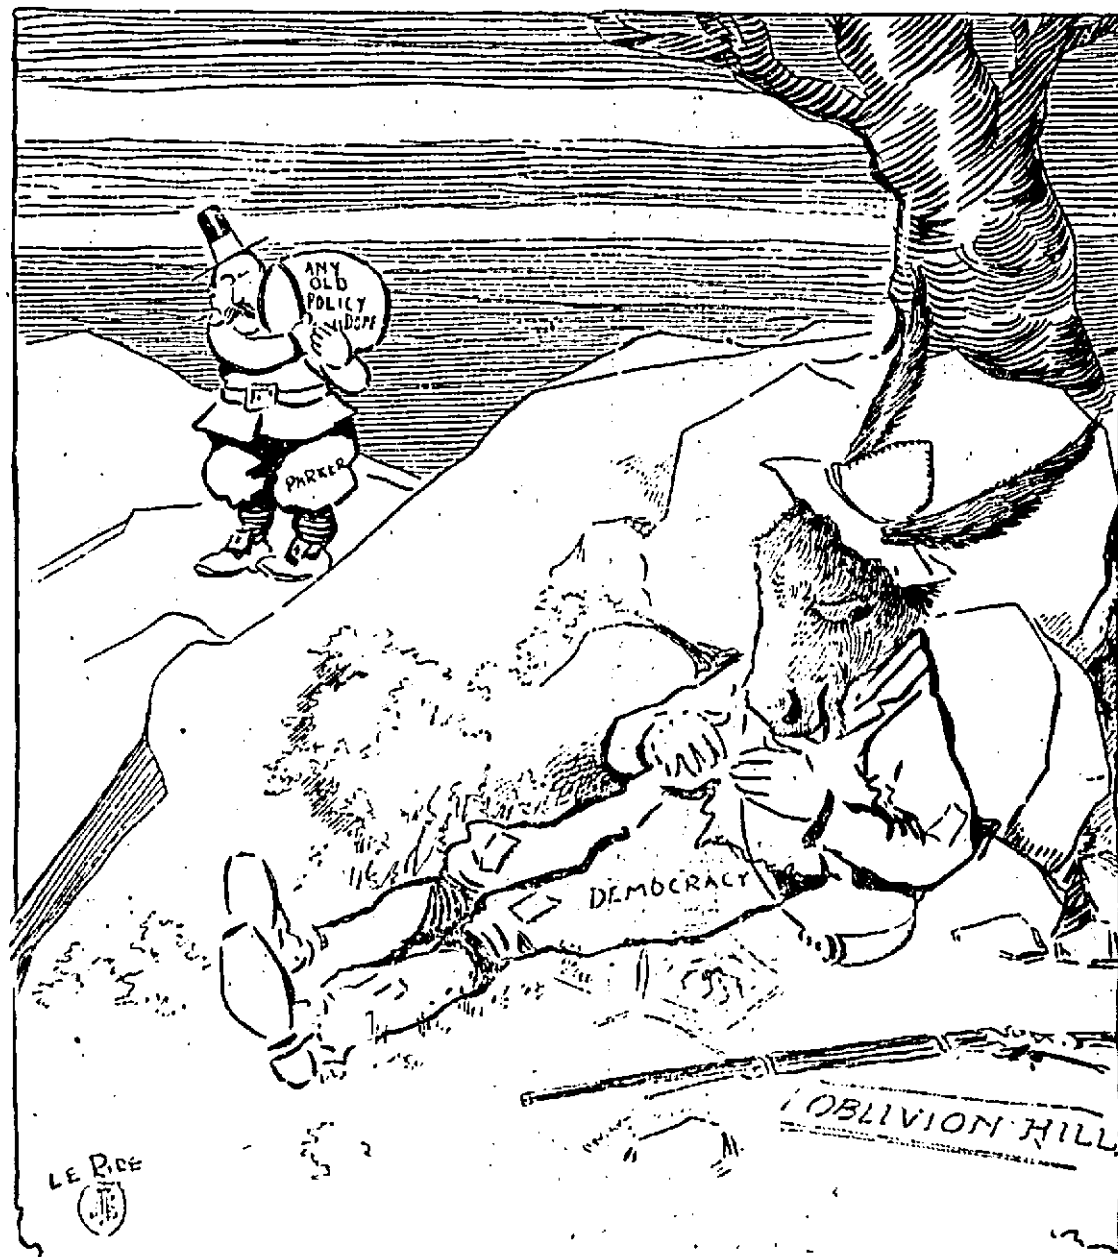

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—It is learned that the Italian government has notified Prince George of Greece that if he does not desist from agitating for a union of Crete and Greece, Italy will initiate a movement to compel him to resign as high commissioner of Crete.

A GREAT STATUE UNVEILED IN WASHINGTON TODAY

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Washington, Nov. 19.—The statue of Frederick the Great, the gift of the emperor of Germany, was unveiled this afternoon in the presence of a great throng. Addresses were made by the German ambassador, President Roosevelt and several representatives of the German emperor. Baroness Sponck von Sternberg pulled the cord, which revealed the statue.

Henry Meltrum, formerly United States surveyor, has been found guilty of forgery on twenty-one counts by a jury in the United States district court at Portland, Ore.

William P. Hayde, for many years county license inspector at Kansas City, killed himself. He sat up in bed next to his young son and fired a bullet into his head, dying within a few minutes.

John A. Fagg, former clerk in the registry division of the postoffice at the Union depot in Kansas City, was found guilty of stealing a package containing $8,000, and sentenced to four years at hard labor in the penitentiary.

Contributions aggregating $15,000 to the Irish parliamentary fund have been forwarded to Ireland from Boston by the United Irish league within a week. The amount included $12,000 from Philadelphia and $1,311 from Toronto, Ont.

William Coleman of New York, who has been confined in jail at Cooperstown, N. Y., since last August, has been released, the grand jury having failed to find an indictment. He was arrested on suspicion of stealing jewels valued at nearly $50,000 belonging to the wife of F. Ambrose Clark, stepson of Bishop Potter.

Demands Cooking Grates.

The British government committee on physical deterioration recommends a law requiring every dwelling or portion of a dwelling occupied by a single family to have a grate suitable for cooking.

TO WATCH RUSSIA'S BALTIC FLEET IN INDIAN OCEAN

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Shantown, Cape Colony, Nov. 19.—The British cruiser Barrosa sailed for Wallis bay on the west coast of Africa. It is believed she intends to watch the Russian squadron bound for the east.

Trivial Causes of War.

Borrowing a tobacco pipe and failing to return it kindled civil war for years among the rival races in the Crimea and Afghanistan. A dispute as to the relative attractions of snails and vipers as food gave rise to fifty years of fighting between Milan and Pisa, and it is said two German states fought for years out of rivalry as to their respective powers of beer drinking. —Stray Stories.

Had Learned Something.

An officer in the British army laughed at a timid woman because she was alarmed at the noise of a cannon when a salute was fired. He subsequently married that timid woman, and six months afterwards he took off his shoes in the hall when he came in late at night.

He Didn't Know.

She questioned as she handed him his book and slate and rule: "What is it that my little boy will learn today at school?" The lad shook his yellow curls, and said in accents cool: "Why, if I knew that now, mamma, I need not go to school." —Chicago Record-Herald.

FOURTEEN MINERS KILLED IN MINE

Ferris Was the Scene of Another Fatal Mine Disaster Yesterday.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Ferris, B. C., Nov. 19.—Fourteen miners are dead in the carbonate mines near Morrissey as the result of a terrific explosion caused by gas yesterday afternoon. The bodies have not been recovered.

Sold by Candle.

The letting of an acre of land has just been sold near Bridgewater (Eng.) by the burning of half an inch of candle, the last blinder before the flame died out being the purchaser. The land was left four centuries ago for church purposes, the testator directing that the letting should be on every twenty-one years by the "burning of the candle," and the quaint process has been observed periodically ever since.

YOUTH SLAYS HIS PARAMOUR

Boy of Twenty Takes Life of a Detroit Club Steward's Wife and His Own.

HAD GONE TO BID HIM FAREWELL

Pair Are Found in a Buggy Drenched in Each Other's Blood—Revolver Ends the Guilty Lovers' Lives.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—The dead bodies of a man and a woman, the former young and unusually handsome, the latter wife of a well-known sporting man, were discovered by policemen in a light top buggy, to which was attached a horse wandering aimlessly down the principal street of Wyandotte, a suburb of this city. In her right hand the woman clasped an open Bible.

Bullet wounds in the head had ended the life of both, and the authorities say it is plain case of murder and suicide. It is presumed that the young man was angered because the woman had refused to continue the relations existing between them, and before it possible that they had entered into a compact of self-destruction.

Husband Delivers Ultimatum.

The principals in the tragedy are Mrs. William Miller, aged 23, wife of the steward of the Detroit Wheelmen, and Henry Hillebrand, a boy of 20.

It is said that the relationship of the two had been long known to the woman's husband, and that he had said that it must cease or she must leave his home. It was to carry out the provisions of the ultimatum, it is said, that she arranged a farewell meeting with Hillebrand, acquainting him with the contents of her husband's declaration that she would see him no more. To fortify herself in the righteous intention, it is supposed, she brought with her the Bible.

Nothing is definitely known. No one heard the shots, and when two policemen stopped the horse and looked into the buggy the bodies were quite cold.

Black Hole in Each Temple.

Both were sitting upright. There was a black hole in the right temple of the woman. By her side was Hillebrand, also with a hole in his temple. Only two shots were fired.

Letters were found in which the wife confessed to her husband a love for the boy. One was found on Hillebrand, written to him by the woman when he was in Chicago recently, warning him to be careful, as her husband had threatened to shoot him should he return to Detroit.

Mrs. Miller had been married but eighteen months. Miller declares it is his belief that she had refused to elope with Hillebrand, which caused him to kill her and commit suicide. He says the boy had threatened to take her life once when she refused to accompany him to Chicago.

TRADE HOLDS UP TO THE STANDARD OF PAST MONTH

Freight Traffic Is Very Heavy and Business Is Now on the Steady Increase.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 19.—The weekly review of Chicago trade, published by R. G. Dun & Co., says: "Trade has fully sustained recent favorable developments. Heavy distribution of manufactures continued and freight tonnage gained, but while the weather was good for shipping, it held too mild for a satisfactory disposition of seasonable retail wares. Wholesale shipments of staples and holiday lines to interior points, made a good aggregate."

"Late buying has been well maintained for the country, and city merchants bought more freely, most of the demands including dry goods, millinery, men's furnishings, woollens and food products. Demand for jewelry, silverware and smokers' articles showed a moderate gain. Orders for re-assortments were of limited extent, but discounting of bills purchased was frequent and mercantile collections generally were reasonably prompt."

Trade in Raw Materials.

"Raw materials exhibit increased receipts. Iron ore, coal, lumber and hides made the best comparisons with a year ago and provide against expanding needs of manufacturers. Prices disclose firmness in all supplies for factory consumption. Advances were effected in quotations for pig iron, bar iron and wire product without creating increased demand. Metal producers have booked many orders for future delivery, and there are commitments indicating a variety of finished materials required for railroads, shipyards and business structures."

"Lumber receipts exceeded 48,000,000 feet, the largest quantity in a long period, while shipments also reached increased figures, country demands having shown notable improvement. Woodworking, electric machinery and shoe factories report gain in production and new business coming forward more liberally."

Grain Markets Decline.

"Operations in grain were influenced by poor outside buying and heavy Argentine shipments. Forwarding from this port was only 2,674,327 bushels, a decrease of 37 per cent as compared with corresponding week last year. Values suffered a sharp decline, corn being weakest and closing 5 cents a bushel under a week ago. Provisions were in fair request, but producers made liberal offerings and quotations ruled slightly under last week's. Receipts of live stock, 301,071 head, fell considerably short of those a year ago. Sheep brought an advance of 15 cents a hundredweight, while hogs and choice heaves both declined 20 cents."

"Failures reported in Chicago district numbered twenty-five, against twenty-two last week and thirty-four a year ago."

CHAUFFEUR MURDERED; LEFT DEAD IN HIS AUTO

Chicago Police Have a Strange Mystery to Solve—Man and Machine Found Today

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Murdered in his automobile, evidently while driving the machine, an unidentified man, but who is supposed to be William Bates a chauffeur, was found this morning on Archer avenue, near Belmont, a Chicago suburb. His hands were clamped to the steering gear and there was a bullet wound in the back of his head. An empty cartridge was found in the bottom of the car. After shooting the car was evidently started back into the ditch, but someone had placed an obstruction to prevent the car from leaving the road. The car bore a Chicago license No. 278, was rented at nine last night to a man giving his name as Dove. Shortly afterward the machine was seen leaving the Auditorium. The police are investigating the mysterious affair. William Bates, the murdered chauffeur, was employed by the Dan Cunney Automobile company on Wabash avenue. The machine was sent to the Auditorium in response to a telephone call from a man giving his name as Dove and who has not since been seen.

JANESVILLE IS JUST ABOUT RIGHT, IS VERDICT OF THE TWILIGHT CLUB

Commercial and Social Interests Discussed Before Large Gathering Last Night--Will Try To Secure Better Mail Service; and Prevail Upon Business Men's Association Members To Pay Their Dues.

Modern Janesville.

Even historically speaking, the location of Janesville—the first city on two main railroad lines above the Illinois state line—makes her "it." She was "it" long ago, and her neighbor to the south, recognizing this, located itself on the map "Belo-It."—H. C. Buell.

Markets and Trade.

Janesville has the best stores of any city of its size in five states. Just as good merchandise can be purchased as reasonably here as in the larger cities. Every home purchase is an uplift for the entire community.—H. L. McNamara.

Manufacturing.

Total value of Janesville's annual manufactures is $4,150,000. Total annual wages, $750,000. Wage-earners, 1,850. Families supported, 1,000. For each family, $750. Individuals supported directly by the factories of Janesville number 5,000, more than one-third of the population.—I. F. Wortendyke.

Communication.

Telegraph, telephone and express companies leave little to be desired. Not so with the mail service. Sixteen years ago there were 7 mail carriers and $16,000 was taken in at the stamp window. During the past year there has been one additional carrier and $39,000 was taken in through the window. Postmaster asked for an increase of three in July and was granted one. There are two important mails. One arrives at midnight and remains at the station until 5:30 a. m. The paper train arrives about 6:00 a. m. The carriers get away from 7:15 to 8:00 a. m. They must collect mail as well as distribute it. When one mail leaves at 6:15 p. m. or thereafter, it is bound for Chicago the next morning. Mail from the hotels is sent to Madison on the evening train and then down to Chicago on the early morning train. This situation exists despite the fact that there are at least a half dozen fast trains passing through this city on their way to Chicago between the hours of 6:15 p. m. and 9:00 a. m. Wanted—a night man to sort the midnight mail before daylight and allow the carriers to get out earlier. Wanted—More carriers. Wanted—Better mail service to Chicago.—W. A. Jackson.

Banking Facilities.

Total capital and surplus of undivided profits of the banks of Janesville on Sept. 6, 1904—$587,000. Increase in ten years—$180,000. Total deposits in Janesville banks on Sept. 6, 1904—$2,766,585. Increase in ten years—$1,774,532. Reserve of Janesville banks—29.9 per cent. Taxes paid by banks to the city this year—$6,421.—William Bladen.

People and Homes.

There are no millionaires in Janesville. There are no palaces, but many beautiful homes. The home life is wholesome and inspiring. The greatest danger which threatens it consists in the many entertainments, especially during the winter months, which tempt the heads of families away from their children.—A. E. Matheson.

Our Institutions.

A city hall that speaks for itself. Handsome Y.M.C.A. building and public library. Eight ward schools and a modern high school. The valuation of school property is $256,000. The cost of maintenance last year was $50,000.

Enrollment—boys 1,177. Enrollment—girls 1,199. Total enrollment 2,376. Number of teachers 70. Paid for wages $12,000. Per capita cost $18.01. The per capita is based on a 13,000 population for Janesville. Beloit, with a population of 10,500, paid a per capita of $28. Madison, with 19,000, paid $19.45. Wausau, with 12,000, paid $21.26. Appleton, with 15,000, paid $25.89. Of this list only the two latter emulate Janesville by maintaining commercial, manual training and domestic science departments in the schools. Janesville is not extravagant in salaries for her lady teachers. Her annual average allowance is $408. Beloit gives $430; Appleton, $420; Wausau, $450; and Madison, $503.

Strength of the City.

Steady progress with no booms. Rich tributary farming lands, good morals inculcated by excellent churches and the police, excellent railroad facilities—20 passenger trains to Chicago every twenty-four hours. Politics—republican—but candidate must be right, as shown by the last election.—Wilbur F. Carle.

Time and Opportunity.

Janesville has not realized the ideal by any means, but has more nearly approached it than many other cities. The spirit of brotherhood prevails. The employers are for the most part splendid men and the same may be said of the employees. Mutual respect and confidence exists. It should be enlarged and strengthened in coming years.—Rev. J. T. Henderson.

Twilight Club Meeting

Janesville's advantages, commercial and socially, were discussed in a pleasing manner before the Twilight club last evening. There were also visitors present who had something to say about Beloit and Evansville. After a tempting supper had been served the hundred or more guests at the board proceeded to elect Rev. R. M. Tippitt as leader for the January meeting. At that time the question of free school-books, involving the broader one as to whether or not the present school system produces the best results, will be considered.

Discussion is opened. A. H. Sheldon acted as leader of last evening's session, devoted to a searching investigation of "What's the matter with Janesville?" Fault-finding seemed to be invited by this query but those who could not boast, if such there were, held their peace. Leader Sheldon cited William Allen White's famous editorial on "What's the matter with Kansas?" a catchphrase which involved a confession in the beginning but was destined later to become a boast. White's frank statement of the ills which beset Kansas had much to do with the reforms which soon after transformed the state. A thorough diagnosis is necessary in therapeutics and when this is made it is often discovered that the supposed malady is only imaginary or a mere abrasion of the epistle. There were possibly in this city some disconsolate remnants of the cantankerous who are subject to attacks of the "dismals." Perhaps some present possessed the objectionable habit of looking on the dark side of city affairs. For these Dr. Twilight had been called in consultation. He was not a quack but carried the conventional sugar-coated pills for patients needing them. His prescriptions and advice had proved reliable and helpful in the past and it was a foregone conclusion that he would speedily find out what's the matter with Janesville, if disorder of whatever nature existed.

Supt. Buell Speaks. Under the topic of natural advantages from a commercial standpoint, Supt. H. C. Buell of the Janesville public schools spoke on the city's location and surroundings. He told the story of the old man living in the Adirondacks, a hundred miles from New York city, who said proudly of the residents of that metropolitan city that he "didn't see how any one could bear to live so far off." Janesville could bear to live so far off. Wanted—The same sentiment prevailing in Janesville regarding the larger cities of Chicago and Milwaukee. The fact is that the location of Janesville makes her "it." The prosperity of any city might be said to depend on two things—the location and the character of its citizenship. It had been said of many cities that if they had enjoyed a few first class funerals their success would have been much larger. But aside from the personal element, location played a great part. St. Louis on the east side of the Mississippi would never have been St. Louis. The unloading place for steamers was on the west side. Chicago elsewhere would not have been Chicago. The same was true of Milwaukee and Duluth. It was a ferry that determined that there was to be a city of Janesville on the Rock river, the center of a rich farming country. Strike an arc of ten miles and you take in the immediate territory of which this city is the trade center. But we also tap the regions west to Mineral Point. We are the first city on two main railroad lines above the Illinois border. So we have the benefit of the visitations of a horde of commercial travelers. Ninety miles from Chicago, seventy from Milwaukee, forty from Madison, Janesville is the center of a circle of wealthy cities. "To him that hath shall be given." Because Janesville is already a metropolitan business and new enterprises must come. The interurban line did not build up the city. It came because the city was here.

H. L. McNamara On Trade. On the subject of Markets and Trade, H. L. McNamara immediately launched into a discussion of why Janesville people should trade at home. Proximity to the large cities made it necessary for the local merchant to compete with their retail stores as well as the catalogue dealers. The custom of certain citizens making semi-annual trips to Chicago and Milwaukee to make their purchases could only be checked by the strongest public opinion. The reasons why it should be checked were self-evident. The home merchant spends his profits on his merchandise in this city. He is interested in Janesville. Prosperity means the wealth of the whole community. Everyone should have his just share. The outside merchant is interested in Janesville only in a casual way. The civil and moral welfare of Janesville is of no interest to him. He wishes this city to be prosperous only that you may come to him and buy his goods. In the second place, it is just as satisfactory in every way to trade at home. The big city department stores sell a few articles cheaper than the smaller stores in the smaller cities, but they make up on others. When traveling expenses are figured in there is no saving for the Janesville customer who leaves the city to make his purchases. In the third place, why should anyone want to trade elsewhere? Before we were engaged in business here the speaker was a commercial traveler. His territory comprised five states and in no city of the size did he find stores that could compare with those of Janesville. Large stocks of fine goods, up-to-date methods, ability and willingness of merchants to fill even the most extraordinary order within a day, all these things are in favor of the trade-at-home policy. In union there is strength. The time when each man made his entire living out of his own garden has passed. Our economic structure is such that the failure of one man affects all. The prosperity of merchant and customer are mutual. It behooves all to do all in their power for the prosperity of their neighbors. If the city is to continue to grow in influence and power, the business must stay here.

District Attorney Jackson. W. A. Jackson, speaking on "Communication and Transportation" said he had been unable to find much the matter with Janesville in this respect. In response to inquiries, the manufacturers and shippers had little to suggest regarding transportation. It was evident that the railroads were accommodating all wants. Many testified that they were getting more favors from the railroads than shippers in other cities. One or two suggested a union track to be used by the two railroads in conjunction but railway men stated that an effort to bring this about had been made without success some time ago. The two railroads were unable to agree. There were a few complaints as to rates but now that we were to have a rate commission, all would doubtless be adjusted. Finding no considerable complaint the speaker thought he ought to be scratched off the list and told a humorous story of the fortunes of the warlike Casey who was collecting the names of the men he could best in a fight. When confronted by Murphy, the first on the roll, the following dialogue ensued:

Murphy: O! understand my name is in that company.
Casey: "Sure it is—the first."
Murphy: "I can lick you in a minute."
Casey: "You can?"
Murphy: "I can."
Casey: "Then O'll just scratch your name off the list."
Speaking on "Communication," with reference particularly to the post-office, Mr. Jackson suggested that a committee be appointed to interview the inspector, who visits the city at short intervals and is now reported to be busily engaged in laying out routes that will permit the post-office to get along with the carriers now in the service.

To Talk to Uncle Sam. Mr. Jackson moved the appointment of a committee to confer with the inspector on the occasion of his next visit here. M. G. Jeffris seconded the motion. Francis Grant said that he had conferred with Postmaster Nowlan regarding the matter and that he had learned that the inspector had himself recommended more carriers and that the headquarters at Washington refused to act on the recommendation. Mr. Jeffris then suggested that the motion be amended and that the committee memorialize the department. It was a serious matter and a good long list of names sent to the department might have some effect. Mr. Grant suggested that the committee work with the inspector. Frank Barnes said that the matter had been up before and a string of petitions had been sent to Washington. Further effort with the inspector might accomplish something. The leader appointed the following committee of five: W. A. Jackson, M. G. Jeffris, H. L. McNamara, Wilbur Carle, and Francis Grant.

Talked for Package Freight. The leader regretted the absence of L. F. Wortendyke who was to speak on manufactures. He, himself, had gathered enough facts to convince him that Janesville was one of the best manufacturing towns in the state. He would call on J. A. Craig to give a word and take the sharp edge off the disappointment. Mr. Craig thought the edge might still remain after he had finished. He had always considered Janesville one of the few favored towns of Wisconsin from a manufacturers' standpoint. Citizens of Janesville did not know as much of the manufactures here as they should. If they did, they would have a deeper interest and sometimes when vital questions affecting these manufactures were up, would perhaps be more considerate in their actions. Last year there was opposition to package freight over the proposed new interurban line to Madison. That privilege meant more to the merchants and manufacturers than many apprehended. In the east sentiment was strong for using these interurban lines to the best advantage. All sorts of concessions were made. Freight cars were allowed to pass through the "main streets of the big cities." The towns that grant the privilege will get the trade of the farmers and will prosper. It would be a big advantage to the Janesville machine Co. to be enabled to ship freight over the Beloit and Rockford line without restriction. As to statistics of what manufacturers were doing here, it was something to know that there were industries enough on the belt line to keep a switch engine busy all day long.

I. F. Wortendyke. Just at this juncture I. F. Wortendyke appeared on the scene and the "sharp edge of the disappointment" (Continued on Page 3.)

TOBACCO MARKET REMAINS QUIET

Casing Weather is Still Awaited—Janesville Market Brisk Compared to Others.

The general tobacco market has been quiet the past week, as much that way as last, but in Janesville several large sales have been made. Mr. Soverill sold and shipped three thousand cases from Stoughton for export. L. B. Carle & Son disposed of 291 cs. of 1902 and 1903 and purchased 211 cs. of the same crops. 90 cs. of 1902 and 50 cs. of 1901 B's were sold by A. N. Jones. Few other sales or purchases were made here and what else was done on the tobacco market was only in small lots.

The continuation of the warm, dry conditions has still kept off casing weather and consequently none of the new crop is moving. The tobacco remains too dry in the curing sheds and until a rain comes not much dealing can be done and the buyers are not inspecting and hanging or preparing at all for the market. The price paid for old leaf which is sought for eagerly by the handlers is not such that will not allow good quantities to be secured. The export or stock manufacturing trade, the bulk of business seems to be confined to the exchange of the low grade goods in which there is a liberal amount of trading.

RED DOMINO HAS MADE ITS CHOICE

Takes Part with the Booth Dramatic Club at the University.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—The Red Domino chooses Edwin Booth. The girls' dramatic organization at the university has taken sides with the boys' club, an older and perhaps more aristocratic organization, has secured the opera house for the night following the junior prom for ten years, beginning in 1905 but the Edwin Booth people have the choice date this year.

In a Merry War. The dramatic societies at the university are in a merry war. The Haresfoot club has given an annual play on the Saturday night following the junior prom and thought it had the right of eminent domain on that night. This year however, a younger organization stole a march and secured the date in advance.

Then the Haresfoot club determined to give a play shortly previous to this time and to make the future sure, secured the opera house for the prom date for the following ten years. The controversy went on until both clubs determined to give the proceeds of their plays to the university social settlement in Milwaukee. Then the clubs began to bid for the favor of the girls' organization, the Red Domino club.

Refuses to Compromise. A conference of the three organizations was held last night at which it was proposed that the rival organizations alternate in giving the annual prom play. The Haresfoot club refused to accept this proposal, claiming that the Edwin Booth society was an upstairs and an interloper of substantially that, that the Haresfoot club had established the custom of a prom play and that it was one of the traditions of the society to give this entertainment and could not be violated simply because the Edwin Booth people had stolen a march for one year by securing the opera house. The Red Domino club approved the proposition to compromise and sided with the Edwin Booth club. One of the members of the latter organization said last night that the girls had decided to give the Edwin Booth club the prize to select the best player in the Red Domino club for the Edwin Booth annual play, and that the Haresfoot people would have to take such girls as remained or were willing to accept places in the Haresfoot club.

Former Governor Announces He is Not a Candidate for the Office.

A strange situation has arisen in the Wisconsin political camp at Madison. The La Follette people, after fighting for years for the primary election law, are opposed to its immediate application to the nomination of a man to take the seat of United States Senator J. V. Quarles. The conservatives want to try the law at once. It is suggested that the La Follette people force that they could not unite their forces throughout the state upon one candidate strong enough to get more popular votes in the primary election than Senator Quarles, who would get the solid support of the stalwarts and the solid numbers of voters who admire him irrespective of factional differences. Attorney General Sturdevant said the morning after election that in his opinion the law applies at once. It is apparent that he did not consult Chairman Connor or Governor La Follette. It seems also that the attorney general is not so sure now that the law applies to the nomination of senator.

The Record-Herald says this morning: "I would not take the United States senatorship if it were offered me on a gold platter," said former Governor W. D. Hoard today in Milwaukee, by way of quieting the general belief that he was a possible candidate for the office. Mr. Hoard said he had frequently denied that he wanted the place and that this denial held good still.

It was said yesterday that petitions had been prepared for Sen. Quarles and would be circulated in six counties of the state for the signatures of 2 per cent of the party, required by the primary law. Those close to him say, however, that he is averse to getting into another fight which must end in the courts to force the calling of a primary election.

General News.

The statistical report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ending June 30, 1903, shows that 1,312,537 persons were employed in that year by the railroads, and that in the year ended June 30, 1894, there had been employed only 779,608. The number employed in 1903 for every hundred miles of railroad was 639, as against 444 in 1894. A statement of the average daily compensation of railway employees shows that of the fifteen classes of employees enumerated, other than officers and general office clerks, fourteen received in 1903 a higher average daily pay than in 1894 or in any intervening year, and the remaining class, while receiving less than in three of the preceding nine years, had more pay in 1903 than in 1894.

It must be remembered that as the several railways increased their sales of pay at different dates during the year ended June 30, 1903, their averages do not represent the rates of pay which the men were receiving at the end of that year. The report shows that the compensation actually paid to all those employed by the railroads in the year ending June 30, 1897, had been $165,501,581. In the year ended June 30, 1903, such payments amounted to $775,321,415, an increase of $309,719,834, or over 66 per cent.

TWILIGHT CLUB HOLD INTERESTING MEET

was declared off. Janesville as a manufacturing city was fortunate in being able to handle its raw material from the immediate vicinity, as well as from a distance; in the variety of industries which precluded stagnation in business when misfortune came to any one enterprise; and in the absence of labor troubles. Many small manufacturers were much better than a few large ones. The speaker gave estimates compiled by Commissioner Erickson of the volume and returns for business here. Speaking of the beet-sugar and canning plants he answered the criticism that employment was not steady by laying down the proposition that any industry that made a market for the farmer's crops in Janesville was a distinct good. Prices for the raw material could never fall below a certain level because these factories, representing thousands of dollars' investment, must pay a price that would make it profitable to raise the crops they needed. With rare exceptions, bonuses should not be given for new factories, but there should be a careful investigation, made with the city's good in mind rather than possible personal benefit of every new proposition.

Evansville's Big Stores
Assemblymen-elect A. S. Baker of Evansville and W. O. Hansen of Beloit were present at the session and T. S. Nolan suggested that they be heard from. Mr. Baker said that he had been said about advancing the interests of Janesville. He had found that when Janesville secured a good concession from the railway he was able to get it also. The tendency of the times was for manufacturing concerns to leave large cities and come to the more remote points. There were things which compensated for the distance from the centers. In the case with Evansville one could be sure of good laborers. Evansville stores were engaged, to a certain extent, in stopping the trade that would naturally come to Janesville. There were two creditable mercantile establishments in Evansville. The grain store, built recently, was making its worth while for customers to trade there and with the other store, conducted on the same principle, the volume of business would amount to nearly half a million dollars a year.

Beloit Right On The Map
Mr. Hansen remembered quite distinctly the time when Janesville spent $40,000 to put Beloit on the sidetrack and acknowledged that the aim was accomplished, though only in a measure. Without intent to boast, he would say of Beloit that it was presiding out in so many directions that it had almost filled the allotted space, two miles square, and there was an overflow into Illinois. There were two large factories there, one a knitting works crowded with orders for Racine feet. One steel bridge was building to this annex and two more were contemplated. For several years past two switch engines, besides the crew that comes up from Rockton and switches in the St. Paul yards, had been required for Beloit's growing business. Beloit was doing its part to keep the people of southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois occupied. It was a slight worth seeing to watch the interurban cars bound for Rockton, lead up at the Berlin works at six o'clock. High class labor was employed by this concern, also the Fairbanks-Morse Co., the J. Thompson Manufacturing Co., the Beloit Iron Works, and the other factories. The first named employed 1,650 men and the average wage was $600 a year. The Berlin Works built a new addition this past summer and the Fairbanks-Morse Co. erected six buildings costing $900,000, in rebuilding after the fire, the J. Thompson Co. was doubling the size of its shops. Intense loyalty to the manufacturing industries was characteristic of all classes in Beloit. The people were fully aware of what they meant to the city. A year ago there was trouble with extreme ideas in labor matters. Without provocation and simply on an order from Milwaukee to further the plans for securing an eight-hour day, a walkout was inaugurated at the Berlin Works. After 450 men in the machine shops had struck there was soon no work for the moulders, blacksmiths, and pattern makers. This strike resulted in the organization of the Citizens' Alliance with 1,000 members. The purpose of the organization was to guarantee every man the right to think and act for himself and work for whom he pleased. The movement in Beloit resulted in the Milwaukee organization voting that the men might return to work at their own terms. From that time on the citizens of Beloit have believed that serious labor troubles that are over for all time. The experience was a lesson.

Wm. Bladen On Banking
William Bladen read a scholarly paper on the history of banking, briefly tracing the story of the banker from his first appearance in the chronicles of the Israelites 3,400 years ago, to the scene of his activities in Janesville. He emphasized the fact that the bank must take no chances that can be avoided and is entitled to the best security on its loans. Bankers cannot know everything and when they decline a loan the customer should not feel that it is any reflection on him or his security. The banker may not know enough to know that the proposed loan is safe. In this era of prosperity people are frequently induced to put their money into enterprises, which on close examination, may be classed as doubtful. They are allured by the promise of enormous profits, overlooking the fact that as the ratio of per cent increases, the ratio of security decreases. During the past year considerable money has been invested by Janesville people in enterprises of this kind. In answer to a question "What is a gold mine?" the speaker received the answer: "A place to put your gold." He thought it was the most lucid answer that could have been given. Acres of diamonds were to be found around Janesville and if prudence and judgment are used, they can be manufactured into money just as well here as away off in some unknown land. Sometimes it seemed as if the further away an investment was, the more attractive it became to some people. The resources of Janesville's banks had always been adequate to the needs of the city and would continue to be so. The banks hope to see the city grow in size and business but cannot take an aggressive part to that end. They are the depositories—the business clearing houses—and should not be expected to be active in new enterprises. That is for the people themselves—the owners of the deposits.

People and Homes
A. E. Matheson spoke of Janesville people and their homes. All languages were rich in home words and the speaker believed that the English language was the richest. The Anglo-Saxon race had ever emphasized those things relating to the home and family. In the largest spirit of sincerity he could congratulate the people of Janesville on their homes and the hospitality accorded the friends who found a welcome there. If there were no palatial homes, many were very fine. Some were beautifully and even luxuriously furnished. But it mattered not how costly a home may be if one found a hearty welcome for the guest. The character of the home signifies much. If the influences are unwholesome, notwithstanding the fact that we have fine Sunday schools, brilliant ministers, and a remarkably good public school system, there is danger. These institutions cannot do the work of the home. One of the dangers to the home was too intense absorption in the business affairs of life. Too many men find that business occupies so much of their time that there is no time left for family and children. Another danger is found in the many meetings and entertainments outside of the home. The average man, in the winter finds that if he is not careful, he has an engagement away from home for every evening. The home is the most vital institution of the land. If the homes of the future are to be bright and clean, the destiny of our nation is absolutely safe.

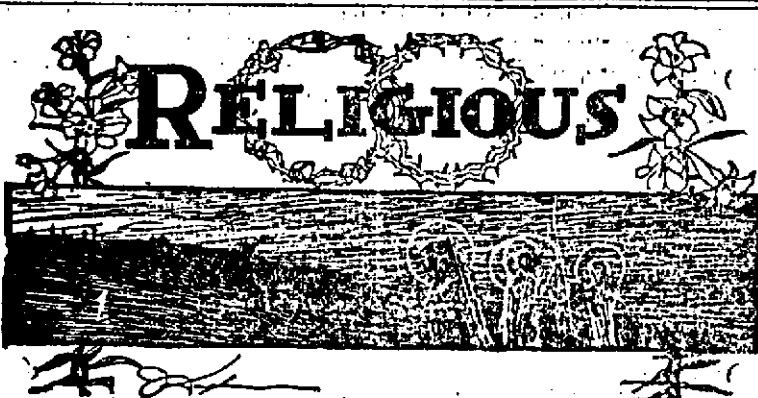

Bomb For Business Men
H. J. Cunningham said that the people of any community could be judged by their institutions. Janesville was abundantly provided with institutions not found in a city, unprogressive and non-public-spirited. He touched on the institutions such as the Municipal league, the Business Men's association, and the Y. M. C. A., which are supported by contributions and the library, city hall, and fire department, sustained by a direct tax. Considerable attention was devoted to the schools. Great improvements were needed at the Jefferson building where the light was poor, the cloak rooms being on the outside and the four rooms grouped together in the center evidently with the design of making heating less expensive. The new Garfield school on South Jackson street would relieve unfavorable conditions at the Lincoln school. The Janesville Business Men's association had 175 members and to its efforts had been largely due the location of most of the factories that had come here in the past five years. The dues were $1 a year. Only fourteen paid up to March 1, 1904. The members should pay up. The money was needed to advertise the advantages of the city and investigate some of the 125 new manufacturing concerns which are starting up over the week in this country as well as those which are preparing to move.

W. F. Carle Spoke
Wilbur F. Carle was convinced that Janesville was alright. He spoke of his residence here fifty years and of the gradual change from a great wheat producing county with a dozen grist mills in and near this city to other forms of agriculture. The advent of the railroads was touched upon and the speaker referred to the healthiness of the city—the absence of swamps and marshes and the admirable natural drainage to the river, the uniform success of the crops, and the conservatism of the business men as contributing factors in the growth and prosperity of the city.

Time and Opportunity
The meeting closed with a very interesting and eloquent talk by Rev. J. T. Henderson. The chimneys of manufacturing were just as necessary as the towers of schools and spires of churches to a good city. No city this side of the New Jerusalem was alright socially but Janesville was as nearly right as the average, if not more so.

NO ANNUAL DINNER
It is with regret that I announce to the many friends of the Mary Kimball mission, that I cannot serve the usual Thanksgiving dinner for the children. I have been confined to my home during the past nine months with rheumatism and am now able to walk but one block, unable to stand upon my feet only a few minutes at a time, and obliged to sit in my chair during services held in the chapel. But, friends, in the joy of preparations for a happy reunion in our own homes, let us not forget God's little ones, who for months have looked forward to the day when they expect to feast upon the good things provided by our Father, from whom cometh down every good and perfect gift. If friends will send donations as usual, I will see that those who need them get them. Groceries, please send coffee, sugar, and fruit, and fowl. Farmers, send vegetables and fowls. The one who cannot send food, can send cash, which food will be purchased. It is also a fitting thing to send in clothing and other things, which are greatly needed by many in our city.

CURTIS GIVES UP TO AN ASSISTANT

Ed. Cochens Will Train Wisconsin Team for the Chicago University Game.

Madison, Wis.—Head Coach Curtis has "called" Assistant Coach Cochens and has practically abdicated in favor of the assistant in the matter of the preparation of the Badgers for the final game of the season, with Chicago next Thursday. This arrangement is agreeable, it seems, to the coaches themselves and particularly to the many friends of Mr. Cochens, who have claimed that he has not been given a chance to demonstrate his ability as a football general. He has wonderful confidence in his powers and has more or less openly confided to friends that he ought not to be blamed for the Minnesota and Michigan disasters, because his ideas were overruled by Head Coach Curtis and "Trainer" O'Den. He wants to become head coach for next year and will succeed if Wisconsin defeats Chicago or holds the maroon eleven to a low score. At Camp Randall Cochens is supreme. He is the chief in the coaching and Curtis acts harmoniously as assistant. A revolution is being wrought in the entire Wisconsin adverse comment by football critics. However, it is generally approved that the Assistant coach is to have an opportunity to display himself, even though it be late in the season, as it will be valuable in demonstrating the precise ability of Mr. Cochens.

Graduate Manager C. H. Kilpatrick is to have the credit of leaving his position January 1 with the Wisconsin athletic association out of debt. At the opening of the football season the association was so far involved in outstanding bills and promissory notes that it was difficult to raise more money. The debt was not announced, but was variously estimated at from $10,000 to $20,000. Gate receipts, particularly at the Michigan and Minnesota games, have been so large that the debts are paid off and the association is approximately $1,000 to the good. It is expected that the receipts at the Thanksgiving day game in Chicago will net the Badgers some $6,000 more. The Minnesota game at Minneapolis produced nearly $12,000 as Wisconsin's share. The Michigan game at Madison netted Wisconsin $5,000.

The great financial results of the Minnesota game have set at rest the suggestion that the Badgers confine their schedule to Chicago and Michigan for the big games. Following the Minnesota game it was complained that three big games was too much for the team and that the "rough" gophers ought to be out of the Badgers' schedule. Several of the players and numerous rooters talked about how rough Minnesota played. Now there seems no one willing to stand sponsor for such complaints. The Minnesota game at Minneapolis was the greatest gold mine of the season and never at Madison or Ann Arbor could such receipts be gathered in, probably not even at Chicago.

The campaign for the position of graduate manager is quiet. George Downer, editor of the Alumni Magazine and secretary of the Alumni association, is the probable choice. Richard Kemp, Andrew M. O'Den and I. Mather are also being "urged by their friends." There is a demand

S. D. Goodale, the quartet, the chorus, and the "Sunbeams," a large chorus of children. All are welcome. Mary Kimball mission—106 South Jackson street. Sunday school at 2 p. m.; preaching at 7 p. m., a Thanksgiving sermon will be preached; meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings. Everybody cordially invited.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.
Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health And Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries the moff the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh. All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at druggists, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

TOBACCO ACREAGE DECREASES MUCH

Sugar Beets Have Made Encroachments, But Last Year's Low Prices Mostly Responsible.

This season one of the smallest tobacco crops grown in the state for years was harvested. There are two reasons for this decrease from last year—sugar beet culture has encroached upon the tobacco lands in several counties and also because of the poor prices that were paid for tobacco last year. While in Rock and Dane counties sugar beet has largely taken the place of tobacco yet the decrease in the crop is quite generally distributed over the state. In Vernon and Columbia counties where no beets at all were raised the per cent. decrease in tobacco is nearly as great. It was estimated before the crops were harvested that the decrease in tobacco would be at least twenty-five per cent from that of last year and the figures of the assessors crop report of the state shows that it was fully this much, or in acres a decrease of 9,108 and the Edgerton Tobacco Reporter, in which the following tables were given in the last issue, estimates that the crop cannot much exceed 100,000 cases. The following table gives the principle tobacco growing counties of the state with the acreage of last year and this year and the totals of the two years. The counties where less than 100 acres are raised are eliminated from the list because their figures would make no material difference to the approximate figures on account of their small size:

Counties	1903	1904
Chippewa	136	110
Columbia	3085	2414
Crawford	1517	1611

The same paper from which the tables are taken is also authority for the statement that the only tobacco counties where sugar beets have not in are Rock, Dane, Dunn, Chippewa and Jefferson. The following statistics were compiled from the state crop report of the assessors made to the state department of agriculture, showing how many acres of beets were raised in the different counties on former tobacco land:

NO CONSUMPTIVES TO BE EMPLOYED
No Persons So Afflicted Will Be in Postoffices—Will Cost Many Jobs.

The ruling at Washington that in the future persons suffering from consumption will not be employed in the United States postoffices or other government positions where they are likely to spread the disease, is creating widespread interest. This decision has been reached by the United States civil service commission, and Commissioner Cooley has sent out an order to that effect. All persons, it is directed, must submit to a physical examination, and if they are subject to tuberculosis they will not be employed. Those already in the service who are addicted to the disease will be dismissed. This action affects thousands of clerks throughout the country, particularly in Denver, Col., and Los Angeles, Cal., which cities are the Mecca for patients who cannot live elsewhere. Until recently the postoffice and federal buildings in these towns were filled with consumptives, it being a standing rule that when a faithful employee contracted the disease in the middle west or east, he be transferred to a warmer or more altitudinous climate.

The new government steamer Tensas of New Orleans passed through Appleton on Wednesday, on its way from Waukegan, Ill., where it has just been built, to its new home on the Mississippi. After passing up the Fox it will go down the Wisconsin to the Mississippi river.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

To the man from outside the country, who studies the game of American politics with any degree of interest the entertainment must be interesting, to say the least.

The election just decided was no more exciting than many which have preceded it, and yet there was so much uncertainty about results that gambling was not considered a safe proposition.

There were six national tickets in the field and while the contest was practically confined to the two great parties, enough votes were cast for the other four, to indicate loyalty to the principles for which they stand.

The vote for the prohibition ticket was not heavy and it is safe to assume that many men who have formerly supported this party returned to their former allegiance and voted for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. While the prohibition party stands for the ideal in government, so far as morality is concerned it can never become a power in politics until public sentiment endorses its principles more generally than it does today.

Laws which have to do with moral questions are always in advance of public sentiment, and this is true of laws which attempt to regulate the liquor traffic.

The Wisconsin laws on this question if enforced would drive every saloon in the state out of business in less than thirty days. It is not the lack of law, but the lack of public sentiment to enforce the law.

When the state of Iowa was working under prohibitory laws there was more lawlessness and drunkenness in the state than at any time in its history. This was not confined to the border cities on the east and west, but was general throughout the state.

The little city of Ottumwa, in the central part of the state supported 100 saloons and the proprietors of these resorts each paid a fine of $100 a month for the privilege of running a disorderly house, and it was disorderly in the extreme. The city averaged a murder every month for a year and the courts of justice were so tardy that mob law was of common occurrence.

This is a world of cold stubborn facts, and it is frequently advisable to make the best of a bad situation. It is infinitely better to regulate an evil that can not be prevented by prohibition, than to turn it loose to roam at will under laws which amount to a burlesque through lack of enforcement.

The three other parties, populists, socialists and social democrat, also aspire to reforms along other lines. The first is the product of the grange movement which reached the height of its glory in Kansas during the grasshopper scourge.

The good people of the Sun Flower state fought an uneven battle with nature for years and repeated defeat led to discouragement and unrest. They came to believe that the world owed them a living and that prosperity was not evenly distributed. They attempted by legislation to accomplish the impossible and as a result the blanket mortgage, which covered the state, became more burdensome.

When the grasshopper plague was abated and the rich soil was permitted to mature a crop, the yield of corn was so great and the price so low that it became a menace and then the people were more fully convinced that the affairs of the nation needed regulating from a populist standpoint. They charged to the railroads and capital the disaster of hard times which belonged to democracy under the second Cleveland administration.

But McKinley, republicanism and prosperity appeared on the surface while Kansas was struggling to solve the problem, and in a short 12 months the people of the state were so busy in paying off mortgages that their troubles disappeared like dew in the morning sun and populism was lost in the shuffle. Populism without Kansas is like Shakespeare without a Hamlet, and that's what populism is today. Tom Watson made a gallant leader but he came from the south, an uncongenial climate for anything but Simon pure democracy.

There is possibly a fine distinction between socialism and social democracy, the two other parties which aspired to recognition, but neither one will ever gain a permanent foothold on American soil. They are products of the old world and the outgrowth of oppression. The ranks of these parties are largely recruited from foreign born citizens who have not yet become assimilated and Americanized. They fail to recognize the fact that this is a free land, and that every citizen is the arbiter of his own destiny.

Socialism, like free trade and free silver, is a fascinating doctrine. The equal distribution of wealth and property is alluring but it will never be realized in this or any other country. The hard work of brain and brawn is the only title to wealth that is thoroughly appreciated or enjoyed. "Something for nothing" is a dangerous doctrine and if it ever became popular with the masses, chaos would result in a short 12 months.

The democratic party is hopelessly demoralized and this fact is conceded by the better element of the party. In 1908 what is left of the party will be training under the banner of Bryanism. Mr. Bryan is already planning a campaign and he has more vitality than all the balance of the party combined.

These are conditions which exist today after the close of a campaign which resulted in a great victory for the republican party. They are significant because they outline very clearly conditions that will prevail in 1908.

If the republican party is true to its trust and faithfully meets the responsibility of the next four years, it will be the one party in 1908, against all the lems for which the country is noted. It is the only party for young men, because it represents the best there is in government.

QUARLES A CANDIDATE.

It is fair to assume that a primary election will be ordered at which the voters of Wisconsin may express their preferences as between the several candidates for election to the United States senate to succeed Senator Quarles. The primary election law was ratified at the election held on Nov. 8, and it is now in full force. It is only by doing violence to the plain provision of the law and by assuming that the word "manner" not only applies to the method of nomination but the time at which a nomination is to be made that an excuse can be framed for ignoring the law now that nominations are to be made of party candidates for the United States senate.

Senator Quarles, who has served the people of Wisconsin in the upper house of congress during the last six years, has attained a prominence in that body that is seldom the lot of a first term senator. He has been appointed to membership of important committees. At present he is chairman of the census committee, and member of the committee on Indian affairs, agriculture and forestry, irrigation and reclamation of arid lands, military affairs, and public buildings and grounds. Wisconsin republicans have the word of party leaders from all sections of the country, among whom may be mentioned Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, that Senator Quarles' services to the country have been of exceptional value and that he not only is strong in the councils of the party but a powerful advocate upon the floor of the senate.

Senator Quarles is not a selfish politician who trims his sails to favoring breezes. He is a republican all ways, and since he entered the senate on the 4th of March, 1899, he has supported the national administration, so far as a legislator could do so, in carrying out the republican policy that was so overwhelmingly endorsed at the polls at the election held on Nov. 8. The vote of that day was a vote of confidence, not only in the administration of President Roosevelt, but in the republican party and the men who represent that party as a majority in both houses of congress. No man in either house is entitled to a greater measure of credit for work well done and promises redeemed than Senator Quarles.

It is understood that Senator Quarles will cause petitions to be circulated as provided for by the primary election law and be prepared to present his name to the people for endorsement when the primary is held according to that law. While the law was pending he did not believe that it was a meritorious measure and he stated his objections to it in clear, unequivocal terms. Now that it has been ratified by the voters, he is prepared to abide by the letter and spirit of its provisions. He will not attempt to evade it or to find a technical excuse for postponing the time when it shall be put into execution.

As has been said, Senator Quarles has not trimmed his sails to catch each favoring breeze. He is a manly, courageous man, as well as an able exponent of republican principles. He took his stand firmly and in the open in favor of what he believed to be correct republican doctrine in Wisconsin and no man can say that he was deceived by the attitude of the junior senator on any subject. Finally, there has never been any question about the fact that in the United States senate Senator Quarles has represented the interests and sentiment of a great majority of Wisconsin voters—the majority, in fact, that is shown in the Wisconsin election returns at something over 130,000.

The contest for the republican nomination in the primary between Senator Quarles and the untied men who are ambitious to succeed him will be an interesting one.

The council has now the proposition of allowing the Beloit, Rockford and Janesville Interurban company the right to use their lines for the purpose of carrying freight, parcel freight, express and United States mails. Ask the merchants in the city Mr. Alderman and see if two-thirds of them do not favor the plan.

A Janesville boy is a candidate for the office of graduate manager of the University athletics. Let the Janesville alumni of the University take a hand and see he gets it.

Every dog has his day but evidently some dogs are to have two days. One when they paid their tax and one when the tax was paid back to them. Such is city legislation.

That little word parcel freight in the request of the Interurban company means a whole lot of dollars in the pockets of Janesville merchants.

Flying machines are having their day at the St. Louis Exposition.

The question of city marshalship is still in abeyance. Take time, members of the council, and when you select your candidate be sure he has not entangling attachments that might ruin his efficiency as a marshal.

Acting Chief Marshal John Brown is filling a hard position and filling it well.

PRESS COMMENT.

Kenosha Gazette: It is hard for some men to break away from politics. There are a number in town who are still talking politics almost as fiercely as if the election were yet to come.

Milwaukee News: After all, it is possible that the democrats of Wisconsin are quite capable of nominating candidates for office without being told what to do by the Waukesha regency.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: It might be well to contract with the Japs for excavating the isthmian canal after they finish their present contract at Port Arthur.

Sheboygan Journal: The Japanese blockade of Port Arthur has been extended thirty miles. In another month it will take in San Francisco, unless the fortress surrenders.

Detroit Free Press: A Chicago woman declares toys generate in children a spirit of cruelty. Now if someone will explain what generates a spirit of idleness in some would-be reformers a burning question will have been settled.

Madison Journal: Mr. Connor, the Marshfield lumberman, is said to regard the United States senate with interest. This from a gentleman who a year ago was unknown to people outside of Marshfield shows what a great country this is for modest merit.

Evening Wisconsin: The penny lunches served in some of the schools will probably keep a good deal of cheap candy out of the stomachs of the little folks, and thus doubly contribute to the physical welfare of the children. The "catch-penny" sweetmeats is a dyspepsia-breeder.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The equal suffragists in session at Janesville are reported very wroth over the neglect of any of the political parties to attach an equal suffrage plank to their platform. Perhaps the managers of this organization will present their claims with sufficient eloquence, they may get a place in the proposed Bryan-Hearst, Watson-Debs merger.

El Paso Herald: Kansas, ever agog with some new thing, reports the coming of a hopper-grass with two sets of teeth and a double stomach—which seems a strictly unnecessary duplication. Also it has a bass fiddle attachment to the downer insect; lives mostly on alfalfa with anything else short of pig iron as a side line; cheerfully works 10 to 24 hours a day and considers itself guilty of race suicide with anything less than 150 eggs, each guaranteed to hatch out twins, each with two sets of teeth and a double stomach. This story comes from Topeka and is therefore fuller of veracity than the late lamented George Washington. Skeptics with doubts of grasshoppers afflicting Kansas in November simply don't know Kansas since times got hot in the old state.

Fond du Lac Reporter: There is a resumption of the talk that Senator Spooner is likely to have a seat in the new cabinet, but it will not be regarded very seriously by those who keep close tab on state politics. If Senator Spooner should resign to enter the cabinet at this time it would give an opportunity to La Follette to select two senators instead of one. Spooner's term still runs four years and it is not likely that the stalwarts would be willing to pour those four years in the lap of La Follette, which is already running over full of good things in the political line. The senior senator has heretofore refused a cabinet place three or four times when to take it would not give his political enemies in the state such an advantage as now. Stranger things might happen than to see Spooner and La Follette contesting for the Wisconsin vote for the presidential nomination four years hence.

The best part of a man's manliness is his boyishness; the best part of a girl's girlishness is her womanliness.

Tell a girl she is pretty, you may win her approval; tell her her rival is ugly you will win her eternal gratitude.

To win a girl, a man must excite her curiosity, command her admiration, arouse her interest and then—make her cry.

A man's capacity for falling in love is like the phenomena of electrical discharge in a thunderstorm: it accumulates until it reaches a certain degree and then strikes the nearest available object.—Mortimer Monthly.

DRIFTS OF WISDOM.

The man who never worries throws a vast amount of responsibility on someone else.

Women generally believe their own family is a few grades above the family of a husband.

A man's ideas of personal liberty is to keep his business to himself and find out all he can about the concerns of others.

Women tell their troubles in confidence to their friends and then wonder why so many persons know of their affairs.

MADISON HIGH VS. JANESVILLE HIGH

TEAMS ARE FIGHTING FOR VICTORY THIS AFTERNOON.

NEITHER ELEVEN CONFIDENT

Both Are Hopeful—Janesville Stands Fair to Defeat Visiting Squad.

Janesville, supported by a crowd of rooters with tin horns, megaphones, blue ribbons and banners, and Madison with but the subs and the coach on the sidelines hoping for their victory, are pitted against each other on the Athletic park gridiron this afternoon. The two elevens are almost evenly matched as far as weight goes, though the local team seems to have the slight advantage. Both are fast and each has developed in team work since the beginning of the season. Janesville rooters are not over-confident and recognize the fact that they have no scrubs to play with. The two teams are lined up as follows:

Janesville
Ryan, c; Dean, g; Vatter, qb; Mahoney, lb; Buser, qb; Gooden, lb; L. Dunn, lb; Sennett, lb; E. French, lb; Feeley, lb; Boyle, lb; Davins, lb; Cramton, lb; Galbraith, lb; Worman, lb; Caldwell, lb; Worman, lb; Madison substitutes: Hall, Bradford and Lathrop. Coach Scott and Official Zeuppke accompanied the team here.

Janesville, 5; Madison, 4. The score at the end of the first half was 5 to 4 in favor of the home team. Lee made the touchdown for Janesville, while the Madison quarter kicked a beautiful goal from the thirty yard line on a side kick. The game is being hotly contested. Janesville is making the longest gains, but Madison is playing the more scientific game.

ASSOCIATION BOYS WERE VICTORIOUS

Defeated Third Ward Eleven by a Score of 6 to 0—Two Teams Will Meet Again.

Though the boys of the Junior department of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the third ward team in football this morning at the Athletic park by a score of 6 to 0, there is still a keen rivalry existing between the two, and another contest has been arranged to be played next Friday afternoon. The game was fiercely fought from beginning to end and several times the third warders' approached the goal of their opponents, but were unable to score and in the last five minutes of play only the hardest kind of defensive work saved the day for the association boys. The touchdown was made by Dreyer on a forty-five yard run, having received the ball from Baker on a fumble. Baker kicked goal making the final score: Y. M. C. A., 6; third ward, 0. The line up of the two teams was as follows:

Third ward

LESSER ELEVEN PLAYING TODAY

Two Teams Pass Through—Former Janesville Rivals Contesting—Hitchcock with Edgerton.

Lesser colleges, academics and high schools are attracting the attention of football devotees today in the absence of the bigger games and nearly every team in the state is playing. The Edgerton high school aggregation passed through here this morning for Monroe where they are playing the high school eleven of that place. Franklin Hitchcock, who attended school here last year, is playing quarter for the to-becco city team. The second team of Beloit college was also in the city a short time this morning. They were bound for Whitewater where they are contesting with the Normal squad. Their line-up was composed of college subs and academy players, and several of those who played here with the academy team several weeks ago are playing this afternoon.

NEARLY KILLED BY A BIG AUTO

Leading Lady of San Toy Company Injured in an Accident at Los Angeles.

Janesville theatregoers who witnessed "San Toy" at the Myers opera-house in September will remember Miss Mina Rudolph, the leading lady. Miss Rudolph was severely injured in an automobile accident at Los Angeles, California, on Thursday, in which her companion was killed and the chauffeur badly injured. Large New Shipments.

J. M. Bortwick & Sons say some interesting things about cloaks in their ad.

THE SECOND TEAM CLEANED UP FORT

Defeated the Fort Atkinson Second Eleven by a Score of 16 to 0 This Morning.

In Fort Atkinson this morning the second team of the local high school won from the second team of the Fort Atkinson high by a score of 16 to 0. Janesville had the best of it at every stage of the game and out-weighted and out-played their opponents in every department. The touchdowns were made by Charles Connors, who ran nearly half the field on a fumble, and Wright and Patrick Connors. Cassidy kicked one goal and Wright failed at two. Their line-up was as follows: F. Caffery, lb; C. Connors, lb; Jones, Talmann, lb; Woodruff, c; L. Burgess, Harper, lb; P. Ryan, lb; Langdon, lb; Wright, lb; P. Connors, lb; Cassidy, Howland, qb; and Saxby, fb.

TRAVELING MAN IN LAW'S CLUTCH

Alleged To Have Passed a Forged Check and Obtained Some Money on It.

W. C. Landreth, a traveling man claiming Chicago as his home, was arrested in Beloit yesterday on complaint of Landolt Donnelly, charged with having secured money on a worthless check for $100 made out on the Bank of Wisconsin at Madison. Landreth was arrested in Beloit by Chief Schiebel of that city on a telephone message from acting City Marshal Brown and was brought back to Janesville by Mr. Brown. Landreth claims that he received the check in question in a poker game in Madison. He said he was the representative of the Metropolitan Trust & Savings company of Chicago. He only secured five dollars on his check at the bar of the Myers hotel.

Wanted to Draw Draft. On Thursday Landreth visited the Rock County Savings bank, presented his card, and informed Cashier A. P. Burnham of his desire to draw a draft for $50 on Metropolitan Trust & Savings Co. of Chicago by which he claimed to be employed. Mr. Burnham said that he was sorry that he could not accommodate him as he did not know that the visitor was identified with that concern or that it would recognize his draft, even if this were so. Landreth said that he would telegraph the company to telegraph the local bank to honor the draft.

Yesterly Landolt Donnelly of the Myers House left the $50 check to be sent to Madison for collection. Even if the check was good, Mr. Burnham wished to have some identification of the man in order that the money might be paid to the right person. So he asked the Bank of Wisconsin to have the maker of the check identify the handwriting of the payee. Mr. Landreth had mentioned having this check when he made known his desire to draw a draft. The cashier did not like the looks of the number of it, which was up in the thousands. It seemed unlikely that a student would have drawn that number of checks. He called up Mr. Boyd, the cashier of the Madison bank, and learned that no such man as the maker of the check had an account at that bank. He then wrote to the Metropolitan Trust Co. and this morning he wired them, asking if they wanted Landreth. They wired back: "Do not want him but the State Bank of La Crosse does." In reply to a telegram to La Crosse he got word that Landreth was wanted there on a charge of securing $50 on a worthless check. The La Crosse chief of police today communicated with Acting Chief Brown, asking him to hold the man.

WORK IN NEW SHOP TO BEGIN MONDAY

The Taylor & Lowell Manufacturing Company Are Now Located in New Factory Building.

The Taylor & Lowell Manufacturing company is now located in its new building on North River street and the gasoline engine department will be ready to commence work Monday morning, at seven o'clock, when every laboring man in the city begins one more week of toil. The new factory, is located beyond the viaduct on land leased from the North-Western Railroad company. It is constructed of wood covered with fireproof paper, on a foundation of solid concrete under the whole building, and is sixty-five feet square. There will be light in abundance; the four sides being open to the air and windows in all of them. There are also skylights in the roof, allowing the light to fall in the center of the shop as well as on the sides.

In the old shop gasoline engines were not manufactured and this is a new line of work that will be taken up. To commence with, the company will manufacture machines of one, two, four and six horse power and as the demand increases, larger engines will be constructed. The smaller one and two horse power are made expressly for small milk separators and pumping purposes, particularly on farms. One of the larger ones will be used for the motive power in the factory. About six hands will be employed at first and within the next six months the management expects to increase the force to ten or fifteen. The wire fence machines have not yet been placed or put in order and no fence will be woven for awhile. Agencies will be established throughout the northwest and middle states to sell the engines.

David Jeffris and W. S. Jeffris have returned from a visit to the St. Louis fair.

IN THE WEST INDIES

LIFE ON THE CROWDED ISLAND OF BARBADOES.

Overpopulation Makes Living Hard, but Darkies Are Happy and Seemingly Free From Care—Furnish Amusement for the Tourist.

(Special Correspondence.)

The little West India island of Barbadoes is the most thickly populated country in the world, with the single exception of China. In 166 square miles there are about 200,000 inhabitants. The greatest length of the island is twenty-one miles, and the greatest width only fourteen miles. It keeps the large population scratching lively to earn a living. Laborers can be employed for 25 cents a day. Men and boys even dive in the harbor for coal that has fallen overboard from the barges, bringing it up by the haul. After hours of work one of these divers will accumulate quite a pile of coal, of which he gets half for his labor, the other half reverting to the coal company.

Living must be very cheap where wages are so low. The poor people of Barbadoes subsist principally on sugar cane, sweet potatoes and flying fish. The average picaninny can get along very well on sugar cane, while flying fish at 6 cents a dozen makes a good diet for the grown-ups. Catching flying fish is an interesting industry, which gives employment to many men and boys. The sailboats go out to sea for a distance of ten or twelve miles. The nets are attached to round hoops, and the fish are scooped up in great numbers.

The sugar industry of Barbadoes is far behind the times. In Bridgetown there is an old Dutch windmill which has been furnishing the power for grinding cane since the year 1729. Negroes still pull the hogsheads of molasses through the streets of the capital as they did in the days of slavery. One planter excused the retention of these two old practices by saying that men were cheaper than horses, and that the windmill was serviceable because there was always sufficient wind to keep it in motion.

The trade of Barbadoes is gradually falling into the hands of the Americans. Last year the merchants of the island bought about as much goods from the United States as they did from England. This year they will probably buy more. It is a good market for our food stuffs, hardware, machinery, dry goods and shoes. The people of the island have been more loyal to England in purchasing goods than the other British possessions in the West Indies, because it has been the distributing station of the Royal Mail Steamship company.

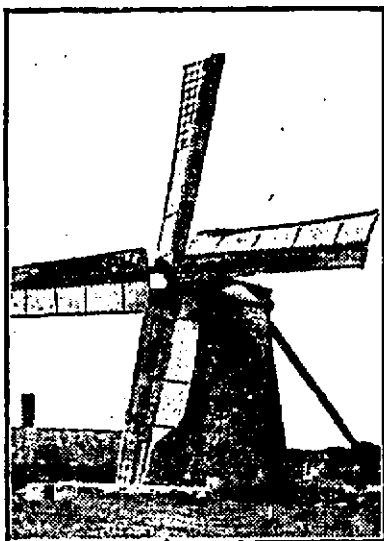

In most of the islands of the West Indies the negroes are shiftless and lazy, but it is claimed that the inhabitants of Barbadoes are industrious and will do anything they can get to do. Times are so bad that many of them would leave if they could get away, but few have enough money to make a start. Every little while a delegation comes around to see the American consul to inquire about the rules for the admission of immigrants to the United States. They nearly all have an exaggerated idea of what they could do in America. The American tourist has been so lavish with his money that when one comes along the natives trail after him like they expected gold to run out of every pocket in his clothes.

A swarm of blacks hang around the wharf at Bridgetown, and the traveler when he lands has the proffer of services from dozens of them. A black girl will want to know if you need a hired girl at home; another will offer to sell you a pig for $4; another will ask if you have any washing you want done; still another will volunteer to let you take her photograph for a shilling. The men will try to sell you everything, from steamer chairs and beads to fish and sweet potatoes.

The diving boys make more money than any of the crowd that lies in wait for the tourists. There are probably no more skilled swimmers in the world than these little negroes in the West Indies. They seldom fail to rethe water, or come up under a man just to fool his companions, after one of these scrimmages, he violates one of the rules of his organization and is likely to get a thrashing.

The cleverness of the negroes in manufacturing all kinds of curious trinkets and souvenirs brings them a considerable revenue. Their beads, made from berries and beans, are sold all over the world. The recent head craze, which swept over this country, almost rivaling the Panama hat fad in its general popularity, originated in the West Indies. The American machine-made beads, for which there was such a demand, were imitations of those made by the children and women of Barbadoes, Trinidad and Jamaica. They make shell hairpins which are dainty and pretty, even if they are not very serviceable. Good luck hat pins made out of large nuts are a novelty, and find a ready sale among the tourists. The delicate, dollies worked from the bark of the lace tree are rare and valued keepsakes.

Old Windmill. and it is quite impossible to supply the demand for these particular articles.

A highly perfumed native grass is used to make fans, wall pockets and handkerchief cases. These articles are trimmed with ribbons, and are much sought after by the ladies of the North. The many curious grasses, leaves and barks in which the country abounds are utilized in the creation of a thousand and one odd trinkets which are sold by the hard-pressed natives. When a tourist ship calls at Barbadoes it is bargain day for the whole population, many of the poor people earning enough in a few hours to keep them for months.

The narrow streets of Bridgetown are always crowded with its black population. Even if many of those you meet have no work and barely get enough food to satisfy their hunger, they nearly all wear clean clothes. One would not know from the manner in which they talk and laugh and sing that they were nearly starving. Any unusual occurrence in the street immediately attracts a crowd of hundreds who are curious and ready to be entertained, even if meal time is approaching and they do not know where they will get their food. The colored race is certainly the most sociable and care-free of all human kind.

English Was Good Enough. An English tourist was being driven on a jaunting car through the Donegal highlands, and after a time the results of his observation came to the surface in the following query: "Driver! I notice that when you speak to your friends whom you meet on the road you invariably do so in Irish, but when you address your horse you do so in English. How is this?" To which came the retort: "Nusha now thin. Isn't English good enough for him?"—The Spectator.

CAN HOLD POSITION TILL BALTIC FLEET ARRIVES

Stoessel Wires Encouraging News in Face of Report That the Japs Have Blown Up an Arsenal.

London, Nov. 19.—With the report that the Japanese have destroyed a Russian arsenal at Port Arthur comes a telegram to the czar from General Stoessel, the brave commander of the beleaguered fortress, that the garrison can hold out until the Baltic fleet arrives in March, if supplied with munitions and stores.

Stoessel says the garrison is sufficient and forts are all intact, only the outer positions, among these being the so-called Fort Komrapatkin, which is merely a temporary fortification, have been taken. The Russian government immediately instructed its agents abroad to supply Port Arthur at any cost with the munitions required.

Lieut. Gen. Sakharoff, wiring from Mukden, says that during the night the Japanese attacked the position of the Russians in front of Poutiloff hill and were repulsed. Possibly it was this firing that was heard in Mukden and which was taken as indicating that a general battle had begun by the Japanese along the Shinkhe river. The hill mentioned, however, is Lone Tree hill, which was captured by the Russians by gallant daring, and which the Japanese have been endeavoring to recapture since it was taken.

Otherwise there is no important news from the theater of war.

It is asserted in official circles at St. Petersburg that the Russians were determined to take no chances to have a recurrence of the destroyer Ryshchinski incident and have their vessel cut out, and Commander Polen's advice confirm the report that he was under orders to blow the Rasteropy up if the Japanese appeared off the harbor.

FOUR ARE KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Carelessness in Handling Acetylene Gas Is Blamed for Their Death.

Five others sustained serious injuries, while a panic ensued among the residents of the neighborhood, spreading for block in every direction.

He had been assigned to respond to the toast "The President of the United States," and he represented President Roosevelt at the banquet. The secretary had spoken but a few moments when he excused himself and left the banquet hall.

Former Rear Admiral Bowles, who presided, told the guests that Secretary Morton was ill and wished him to offer his excuses for leaving them so soon. The admiral said that the secretary was not seriously sick, but did not feel well enough to remain longer. It was said later that Mr. Morton had left for Washington.

NEW WATERWORKS FOR MUNCIE

Council Negotiating for a System That Will Be Cheaper.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 19.—The waterworks fight has assumed a serious phase. The city councilmen are negotiating with Chicago firms for the erection of a waterworks system for the city. The municipal ownership plan is a result of the inability of councilmen and waterworks company officials to agree upon the matter of rates. Citizens are fighting the present rates, claiming they are exorbitant. Chicago firms are offering to place a first-class system in the city and allow the same to be paid for at any time they desire to buy it on the installment plan.

RUSSIA IS TO REBUILD HER SHATTERED NAVY

America, France and Germany Are to Profit by the Execution of Program Now Being Framed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—America is likely to profit, both directly and indirectly, from the execution of the large naval program which Russia is now elaborating.

The vital importance of sea power has been Russia's bitterest lesson of the war, and the government is fully determined that the maintenance of the empire's position in future as a first class power will be impossible without an adequate navy.

If the losses the Pacific fleet has already sustained should be followed by disaster to Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron it will be necessary not only to rebuild the whole navy but to increase its strength.

The immensity of the task seems to be fully appreciated. While some of the contracts will be placed abroad, owing to the limited facilities of Russian yards (and it is expected that at least one big ship will be constructed in America), the admiralty's plan will be directed towards ultimate divorce from dependence upon foreign shipbuilders by the organization at home of vast shipbuilding, armor plate, ordnance, and kindred industries. For this purpose it is realized, however, that foreign builders and specialists must be attracted, and some alluring prospects are likely to present themselves.

Vickers' Sons & Maxim, and Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., limited, of England, have already made advances, but owing to the anti-English sentiment British firms are not meeting with a cordial reception.

The disposition is to turn towards France, Germany, and the United States, and a great plant at Lihau or on the banks of the Neva, directed by American brains, and possibly in association with French and German enterprise, is one of the possibilities of the near future.

Chester, Pa., Nov. 19.—Several hundred persons were in attendance at obsequies held over the remains of "Spot," a bull terrier, owned by Miss Henrietta Cooper of Bethel court, this city. THE SENTRY BOX

"NOT FOR THE PUBLIC"
For Senators and Their Families Only.

"This Elevator for Members and Their Families Only Between 11 and 4 o'clock."

"For the Supreme Court Only."

So read signs on elevators in the parts of the capitol at Washington occupied by the august bodies above mentioned.

"The Offices of the Members of the Cabinet are Closed to Visitors, by Order of the President, on Tuesdays and Fridays, Cabinet Days."

"The Department is Closed to Visitors, after 2 p. m."

So read signs which stare the visitor in the face upon approaching the portals of any of the nine executive departments in Washington.

And these are not the only prohibitive notices which the citizen from a distance has thrust under his eye when he tries to do business in Washington either at the capitol or in the departments. The doors of the galleries of the house and senate, for instance, are carefully labeled and guarded, and only those coming from the category included in each sign are admitted to each subdivision of the galleries, no matter how many seats may remain vacant while the people are standing in line awaiting a chance to enter the "public" gallery farther down the corridor. The "diplomats" on the rare occasions when any attend, are ushered with ceremony into a finely embellished, zealously guarded, set of comfortable benches, the "executive gallery," in which no executive of recent years has been brave enough to sit and listen to the uncomplimentary things said about him by the opposition, is nearly always entirely empty; the "member's card gallery" is only for those who through acquaintance with a legislator can obtain the finely engraved card of admission, which cards are given out by the hundreds by the genial gentlemen of the toga, and by no means insure the bearer a seat if the occasion is in any way out of the ordinary. Finally, over the door which leads into the least desirably situated subdivision of the galleries, from which only the rear elevation of the bulging craniums of the statesmen can be admired, one can read the magic words "Public Gallery," and these the ordinary citizen, who has no "pull," perhaps, but no doubt pays his taxes regularly to support the national legislature among other functions of the government, may rest his weary limbs, after being shunted from one "reserved" elevator to another and, it may be, making almost a circuit of the corridors in search of a "public" elevator, finally, in despair, climbing the two flights of broad, marble stairs which bring him to the gallery.

In the departments the same air of exclusiveness prevails. Watchmen are stationed at all entrances who closely scan all comers; and the signs before mentioned play their little part in awing the caller. If the hour of two has struck the ordinary caller is told that he cannot enter, and if he has business to transact it must wait until the next day, no matter how important it may be to him nor how much expense he may be put to in remaining over. If he is successful in gaining entrance, and desires to see the head of the department, he is asked by the nature of his business, and is requested to take a seat. He takes one, and finally begins to think, as an hour or two go by, that it is his in fee simple. Sometimes, if it is a very comfortable seat, he goes to sleep, and just as he is dreaming that he is back home telling the folks all about how cordially Mr. Secretary Blank received him and at once granted his request, he is aroused by the secretary to the secretary who, after inquiring the details of his errand, tells him that he should see Assistant Secretary This or Superintendent That who has charge of the matter, and soon the caller is again tramping the dim, endless corridors looking for the room to which he has been directed. There, perhaps, he goes through the same procedure again, for some subordinates are as tenacious of their official exclusiveness as their chiefs.

far more through such official neglect of its affairs than when an individual visitor now and then is caused some annoyance or expense in his efforts to get his business attended to. These restrictions upon the liberty of the public have continued through administrations of both parties, each seeming to draw a little tighter the coils of circumlocution, until one can but wonder how long it will be before signs will be posted on the government buildings reading: "Not for the Public. No Admission." While the Sentry admits the right of the officers of our government to lay down reasonable regulations to facilitate the working of our vast government machine, such power should be jealously guarded and sparingly exercised, and certainly should not be carried to the extreme of barring the taxpaying visitor, whose servants such officials are, from the reasonable use of any facilities for transacting business with his government. The people are generous and would not begrudge reasonable additional appropriations for clerk hire if it were found that more were needed under the changed conditions, especially if then each citizen knew that he could go to Washington at any time and be sure of prompt consideration for his business, untrammelled by undemocratic, unnecessary restrictions upon the liberty of his movements while at the seat of his government, toward the maintenance of which he contributes his portion in taxes.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a whole night, second, to be awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Restlessness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity. Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow weaker. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a cure of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. We were saved."

CHAPTER XVI.

Bad News.

When Blake arrived in Birmingham he felt like a stranger in a foreign land. His parents were dead and his relatives scattered. The village looked smaller than when he was a boy. He felt himself in a living graveyard. Securing an open carriage and a driver from a livery stable, he rode through the quiet streets and out into the country. "Drive to Thomas Bishop's house," he ordered.

The drawn and dust-covered shutters of the old mansion told their own story. From a passing farmer Blake learned that the Bishops had moved to New York months before. Half an hour later he knocked on Peter Burt's door.

As a boy, Blake stood in awe and fear of the strange old man, but the years had obliterated this feeling. His knock sounded hollow on the great oaken door, and he wondered if the aged recluse yet lived. Mrs. Jasper, the housekeeper, opened the door, and Blake at once recognized her.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jasper? My name is Blake—James Blake. I lived near here when I was a boy. Don't you know me?"

"Little Jimmy Blake! Well, of all things! I never would have known you. Come right in—Mr. Blake."

"Is Mr. Burt here?"

"Yes, but I don't know if he'll see you," she said, hesitatingly, wiping her hands on her apron. "He don't see nobody, you know."

"Tell him who I am, and say I'm from California," said Blake, who could think of no other introduction. They stood in the old-fashioned parlor where Peter Burt had bound the officers of the night John Burt left Rocky Woods. As Mrs. Jasper hesitated, the door leading to the sitting room opened and Peter Burt entered. Blake could not see that he had changed a whit. Age had not ravished the strong face nor robbed the massive figure of its strength. He advanced to the center of the room, his eyes fixed searchingly on the face of his visitor.

"What have you to say to me, Blake? Be seated, sir."

Blake took a seat in an antique rocker and shifted his legs uneasily. "Where is John?"

"John—John—I don't know."

"Do not lie to me, Blake. Tell me what you know of my grandson."

"He is in California, sir!" exclaimed James Blake. When these words were uttered he felt a sensation of relief which was positively exhilarating. "He is alive and well! John is rich, Mr. Burt! He is a millionaire many times over!"

A grave smile lighted the features of Peter Burt. He closed his eyes and lay back in the chair.

"Go on; tell me about it," he said, as Blake paused.

For an hour or more the head of the firm of James Blake & Company related the history of John Burt's career in California, and the result of the recent speculative campaign in New York. Once in a while the old man asked a question, but he made no comment until the narrative was ended.

"Your heart dominates your judgment, but that is a trait and not a fault," he said, as he arose and offered his hand to James Blake. "God gives us emotions and faculties; from them we must develop character. Do not charge yourself with a broken promise to John. He has kept his pact. I send him my blessing. Say to him that I am strong and well and happy. Say to him that his future field of work is in New York city."

Peter Burt stood in the doorway and watched until the carriage disappeared beyond the old graveyard.

"I'm glad that's ended!" said Blake to himself. "I wonder what I told the old man? Everything, I guess. I'm hearing a crisis, and I'll tell him I'm used to crises and guess I can stand one more. Who's coming? His face looks familiar. It's Sam. Round!"

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because of its deceptive nature. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney trouble. If kidney trouble is allowed to develop, the kidneys become clogged with blood and attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention sending this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Stop, driver! Hold! Sam! How are you?"

Seated in a stylish road car, behind a rangy, high-stepping trotter was one of the companions of Blake's boyhood. Sam checked his horse and, with a puzzled grin, looked into the speaker's face.

"Hau de ye dew? He drawled, slackening the lines. 'Yer face looks fee-millar like, on yer voice don't sound strange like, either. I believe I know ye! It's Jim Blake! Hau air ye, Jim? Well, well, well! Who'd a thunk it—who'd a thunk it?"

Sam reached across and shook hands with a vigor which nearly pulled Blake out of his carriage.

"Air ye the James Blake I've been readin' about? The one that's been givin' them New York sharps a whirl in stocks?" asked Sam.

Blake smiled and nodded his head. "Is that so? Well, well, well! Say, I'm plumb glad to hear it!" and Sam's smiling face showed it. "Ain't never heard of John Burt, have ye? No? Well, he'll turn up on top some day, an' don't ye forget, Sam. Roundt alers said so. Where do ye goin' to, Jim?"

"I'm going back to New York to-night," replied Blake. "From there I return to San Francisco, but expect to make New York my home."

"Is that so? I'm livin' in New York now," said Sam, handing Blake his card. "Moved there several years ago. Mother an' I are here on a visit for a few days. I've been doin' fairly middlin' well in New York, Jim. When you write me, be shore an' put 'Hon.' before my name," and Sam laughed until the rocks re-echoed his merriment.

"How is that?" asked Blake, gazing blankly at the card.

"Read what it says," insisted Sam. "I'm alderman of my district, an' have just been re-elected tew a second term. Fact!"

"I congratulate you, Sam," said Blake, heartily.

"Sorry ye haven't time tew wait over an' go back with us," Sam said. "But if ye are goin' tew locate in New York, I'll see lots of ye."

"I certainly will look you up when I'm in New York," said Blake. "My regards to your mother, and say I'm sorry I didn't have time to call on her. Are you married, Sam?"

"Nop, but I has hopes," laughed Sam, gathering up the lines. "Good-bye, Jim, good-bye, an' more luck tew ye!"

"Same to you, Sam; good-bye!"

Ten days later James Blake arrived in San Francisco. He drove to John's apartment, and was greeted by him in the old study room. Blake sat where he looked at the portrait of Jesse Carden. His heart sank within him.

John heartily congratulated Blake on his mastery of generalship.

"We will talk business to-morrow, Jim," he said. "I am more anxious to hear of other matters. Now, tell me the news. Did you hear of Miss Carden? Is my grandfather alive?"

"Peter Burt is alive and well," said Blake, glad to bring some good tidings.

"Alive and well," repeated John Burt. "May God bless him! That is good news. Go on, Jim."

"Arthur Morris is alive," said Blake, without lifting his eyes.

"The local papers contained that news," observed John, carelessly. "What's the matter, old man? You're pale. Are you ill?"

"I've had news for you, John," he said, desperately. "I may as well tell you and be over with it. Miss Carden's engaged to be married!"

John's lip tightened and a red spot burned on his cheek.

"To whom?"

"To Arthur Morris, John."

John Burt sprang to his feet, hurling the chair backward with a crash. He strode forward, his eyes blazing with fury and his features convulsed with passion.

"It's a lie, Blake—it's a lie, and you know it's a lie!"

He towered above his astonished friend. His fingers were clenched and his lips twitched. Turning abruptly, he walked across the room with his hands pressed over his forehead. For a moment he stood silent, then abruptly turned to Blake with his hands outstretched.

"I beg your pardon, Jim. Forgive me, old man! I didn't know what I was saying. Forgive me, Jim, will you?"

"Certainly, John, but there's nothing to forgive," replied Blake heartily, as he grasped his friend's hands. Perhaps it is a lie. Let us hope so, John."

For moments no word was spoken. John Burt stood by an opened window, with his back to his friend, and gazed out into the darkness.

"Tell me about it, Jim," he said, breaking the silence.

Blake related the details of his introduction to Arthur Morris and told of the night spent in the latter's apartment. He repeated the conversation as nearly as he could recall it.

John abruptly changed the subject and questioned Blake about his interview with Peter Burt, and smiled quietly when he related his experience with the old man. He was not displeased that Blake had been forced to reveal his secret.

"I have anticipated his advice about going to New York," said John. "My plans are made, and if you are willing, we will make New York our future headquarters of James Blake & Company, with the San Francisco establishment a branch house. Think it over, Jim, and let me know your decision, as soon as possible."

WHY IT SUCCEEDS

Because it's For One Thing Only and Janesville is Learning This. Nothing can be good for anything. Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They are for sick kidneys. They cure backache, every kidney ill.

Here is evidence to prove it.

Mrs. George M. Carey of 1029 Pleasant street, Beloit, says: "I could hardly realize that the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills obtained at C. B. Emerson's drug store did me so much good. I used medicines from the doctor which helped me for a time, but soon I became as bad as ever, if not worse. I suffered from disordered kidneys for four years and the pain in my back was terrible. I could not sleep but at times had to sit up almost the entire night. When rising from a chair I was often compelled to place my hands on the sides of it and raise myself up to keep the strain off my back. I also suffered from the disturbing of my rest at night. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time these symptoms left me and since then I have felt well."

Plenty more proof like this from Janesville people. Call at the People's drug store and ask what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole and ask what their customers report.

Remember the name—Doan's, and take no other.
